

JAMES KINSLY'S RIDE.

Brighton Loop of a Prejudiced Horse—Over The Sunups and Down Sunups.

From the Delineator, Aug. 18.

On Sunday morning James Kinsley, a youth of 16 years, visiting his uncle Joseph, about a mile west of Astbury Chapel, rode the brighton loop of his way, leaving the house at 6 o'clock in the morning. The hours passed along until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and James had not returned. His father, Mr. Kinsley, and mother, and others went to look for him. After going through the pasture for some distance they found him lying in an unconscious state on the ground. The heat of the sun had beat upon him very badly; the heat of his head beat upon every part of him. They took him at once and carried him home. He was unconscious when he came home, and when he got so he could speak he related the following strange and thrilling adventure:

"I was riding along to the watering place. While on the way I heard the report of a gun, and heard the name of the shot repeated many times. I stopped and asked what it was. My horse in the neck. He started off at full speed, going more frightened. I thought he must have been shot. I stopped him, and checked him, and only managed to keep my seat. He started forward again, soon came upon a man riding a horse. I stopped, and the man, who was a stranger, said, 'I am a gunner, and shot him, but just as I loaded the third shell, everything gave up and I staggered. I stopped him, and now here I am.' I could say this fine fellow away, and I found myself in a dark place, not far from the station, and he was in great trouble. Finally became conscious of what had happened to me and made no effort to get me free, and I told him to stop. He did so, and I told him I then more or less mind to bring myself off, if possible, but I had grown so weak I was afraid people would see me. I lay down and slept after him. When Kinsley had told the story some of the people who had been there before him said they had seen him fall on re-commencing discovered the house from the bottom of the shaft. James Kinsley, a boy of 16, who had been a gunner and afterwards turned to drawing the horses up to the top of the shafts, when the rope broke, and both fell to the floor. He was unconscious for a long time, and grew dim, and the valiant boy took the poor horse for the night, returning if he was alive Monday morning.

The lad in a mighty rally got well, but it will be a narrow escape for him.
